

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An audio processor comprises a control device which fetches in, when executing one process, a program and data stream corresponding to next process from an external memory device, an internal memory which stores the program and data stream read from the external memory device and corresponding to the one and next one of the processes, and a processor which subject the input data stream to the process based on the program and data stream read from the internal memory.

00015340-072704